Rights of drug suspects violated, court says

By Thomas H. Thompson and David A. Savage
 Associated Press

A federal judge in New York has ruled that the government violated the constitutional rights of two men arrested in 1994 on suspicion of being part of a drug trafficking ring. The judge, Judge John J. Lewis, said the men were arrested without probable cause and that their attorneys were not allowed to see them. The men, who are now in federal custody, are being held in New York City. The judge's decision is a significant victory for the men and their attorneys, who have been fighting the government's case for years.
